

A schematic diagram of a Y-shaped dendritic tree. The tree has a central trunk that branches into two main arms. At the distal end of each arm, there is a red sphere, representing a synapse or a specific cell body. The diagram illustrates the spatial arrangement of these two spheres relative to the central trunk.

