Customer confirmation

In this agreement, the customer is referred to as "I." U.S. Bank, U.S. Bank designees, and other banks involved are referred to as "the Bank."

I'm responsible for the accuracy of the information I provide.

I confirm that the Bank will rely on the account number, bank number, and other information I provide. The Bank is not responsible for finding mistakes in my information. And the Bank is not responsible for funds lost as a result of my mistakes. There are exceptions provided by the law.

Fees may be withdrawn from my transfer.

Fees may be withdrawn from the transfer amount by other financial institutions involved in the payment process.

My transfer must follow the Bank and federal rules.

I understand that my transfer is subject to the rules in the Bank's Your Deposit Account Agreement.

In addition, my transaction must follow federal law and regulation. This includes restrictions from the U.S. Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control.

My transfer may be converted to foreign currency.

For international business wire transfers, the transfer may be made in the applicable foreign currency.

When that happens, the Bank may convert the transferred amount from U.S. dollars to the specified currency. The amount is converted in the rate that's in effect when the transaction is processed. The Bank can provide this rate if I request it. Even if I choose not to convert to local currency, my transfer may still be converted during the processing chain. The Bank may route payment at our discretion for each outgoing wire transfer.
